The SRS Group, President and CEO

Every individual and company has a story. The SRS Group began modestly in 1988 in the family spare room of Founder, President, and CEO, Greg Johnson. The family-owned business was founded originally as Susquehanna Rehabilitation Services, due to its proximity to Pennsylvania's largest river, the Susquehanna.

The founder a Graduate of Cornell University began his career as a Medical and Vocational Case Manager working with individuals injured in the workplace and was intrigued by the variety of challenges faced by the injured worker and the impact that could be made with the proper support and guidance. He found the injured person could really be helped to overcome these challenges and return as a safe and productive employee. And so it began... It was not always easy, but with consistent effort, a persistent will, and steadfast tenacity the company has stood the test of time.

Although a lot has changed in 35+ years, a few things have remained the same. The SRS Group family and family of employees remain dedicated to developing and growing, to stay abreast of industry changes and advances in healthcare but remain the same in treating individuals and companies the way we would want to be treated.
